

COA Accreditation

A Service of Social Current

Why Accreditation?

Accreditation provides a framework to effectively manage resources, implement best practices, and create an organizational culture of performance quality improvement. This supports an organization's sustainability, encourages its growth, and helps it to achieve measurable results.

- Accreditation is both a process and a credential
- The accreditation process is voluntary
- Only organizations, agencies, or programs can be accredited
- Accreditation signifies that an organization or program is effectively managing its resources and providing the best possible services

Over and over, COA Accreditation has helped organizations find new direction and take their services to a higher level.

More specifically, accreditation helps you to:

Support your staff

Deliver the highest quality services to your clients

Satisfy your board

Inspire confidence in donors and funders

Meet the needs of regulators

Who We Accredit

Our network of more than 1,600 accredited organizations includes:

- Canadian Organizations
- Private Organizations
- Child and Youth Development Programs
- Public Agencies

The COA Accreditation Difference

We look at the whole picture.

Our Private organization accreditation accredits the entire organization, not just specific programs. The COA Accreditation process involves a detailed review and analysis of both an organization's administrative operations and service delivery practices, as all are critical to great outcomes. We want to ensure that you have all the support you need to provide the very services to all your stakeholders.

By making accreditation a whole-organization process, you help to ensure that everyone – from human resources to finance to direct care and clinical staff – is working together to carry out your mission. Everyone becomes invested in best practices, and everyone benefits from them.

We're powered by our community.

We strongly believe in the value of collaborating with the human services field. That is why we conduct our Site Visits and finalize accreditation decisions not with our staff, but with a group of specially trained, seasoned, and skilled peer review volunteers. Our volunteers receive no compensation; they generously donate their time and talent.

Our standards are field-driven.

Our standards are grounded in the belief that when organizations invest in strong management practices and understand and monitor the impact of their services, clients benefit. Our multi-stage standards development and vetting process involves a diverse set of experts and ongoing feedback from those in the field. This ensures that our standards remain rigorous yet practical, reflecting current trends and best practices. It is also why we make our standards available on our website for free.

We are with you every step of the way.

Your dedicated accreditation coordinator will be with you from the beginning to the end of the process to answer all your questions and to partner with you on all accreditation related matters.

Our Approach

Collaborate

We work with you to identify the right standards and build out a timeline that fits your organization's needs.

Support

Provide feedback and resources throughout the process to help you stay on track and well-prepared for the review.

Validate

The Site Visit confirms the implementation of the applicable standards as a means of supporting your organization's achievement of COA (re)accreditation.
